Strong Points

Stephen's class was well planned and - the vocab being on maths - was quite original. I fully agree with his rationale to teach vocab on this topic. He responded well to students' questions, modifying the lesson appropriately to respond to points of language. The students were engaged with the lesson throughout and appeared enthused by the general content of the lesson. The bingo exercise was very good, allowing students to focus on and practice new vocab.

Points to work on

Just take care to point out the difference between account and bill. One of the students confused the word in her language with that in English, which is a false friend.

Overall Points

Stephen is most professional and competent. He engages well with the students and has a good ability to get them involved in the lesson.
